Lumbermen Declare For Open Shop

A reduction in the price of lumber from 19 to 39 per cent below the prices that have prevailed since Mar.-1920, was announced yesterday at a meeting of the Retail Lumber Dealers Association of Pennsylvania. The meeting was held in the Chamber of Commerce, Pittsburgh.

The average cut in price will be about 25 percent, it was said. It is hoped that the move will stimulate building.

The association by resolution decided to petition the State Legislature to enact a law allowing 7 per cent as the legal rate of interest on mortgages. The shortage of mortgage money is declared to be acting as a check on building.

By an unanimous vote the association declared itself in favor of the open shop policy. The closed shop, as advocated by the labor unions, was denounced as un-American.

The officers of the association are: D. S. Milley, president; W. H. Reese, vice president; W. B. Stayer, secretary; R. F. McCrea, assistant secretary.

The directors are: A. J. Weber, Cumberland, Md.; J. A. Elder, Altoona, E. M. Fulton, Irwin; George N. Glass, Pittsburgh; E. M. Hill, of Pittsburgh; G. F. Hoge, Canonsburg; J. C. Wilson, Uniontown; A. E. Kerr, New Castle; J. B. P. Kennedy, Beaver Falls; D. S. Milloy, Erie, Pa.; W. H. Reese, Monessen; D. W. Simpson, Indiana, G. P. Texter, Wilkinsburg, Albert Walters, Johnstown; J. R. Wishart, Sharon; and O. P. McDaniel, New Brighton.

Fire Threatens Home

What might have been a disastrous fire was only averted by the prompt action of the local fire department last night when a gas light in the home of J. E. Pittman on McKee avenue set the entire third floor of the building afire. The third floor was used as the children's bedroom and two of the boys were sent to bed about 7:30 and it is thought that in attempting to light the gas they turned the light too high and the paper caught fire. The screams of the children brought Mrs. Pittman to the room and she hurried to the bath room for water but on her return discovered that the blaze had gained too great headway and sent in the alarm.

The firemen responded immediately and used one stream of hose and several chemical tanks with telling effect. The blaze was confined to the third floor, but much clothing and carpets were destroyed and a hole was burned in the roof. The firemen used the water sparingly and only slight damage was caused on the first and second floors.

Police Court News

M. R. Cassidy after imbibing a little too freely from the flowing bowl took it upon himself to investigate the military standing of several young men standing on the corner of 5th street Saturday night. When he questioned Robert Farquhar and failed to receive a satisfactory answer he attempted to use force and the police were forced to quell the disturbance. Cassidy had little defense to offer at the hearing this morning and paid a fine of $3.00 and costs. Farquhar was allowed his freedom on payment of the costs.

Emil James and Paul R. Lutes were looking for trouble Saturday night, but instead found the police who took them to the borough bastile. At the hearing both plead guilty and paid fines of $2.00 and costs each.

Meet Wednesday

The Woman's club will meet on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 with Mrs. J. K. MacFarland. This is "music day" and the report of the delegate to the State Federation meeting will be given. The Musical Auxiliary members are invited as guests. Mrs. MacFarland will be assisted by Mesdames J. Howard Kelly, Harry E. Gress, Carey L. Schuck, W. P. Gemmill.

Among the 1920 honor students announced last month at Allegheny College was Miss Ethel Fawney of this city, who took second honors in the Junior class.

MONESSEN HIGH SCHOOL CHAMPIONS ADD MONONGAHELA TO LIST OF VICTIMS

Monessen High school added another victory to her credit by defeating Monongahela High last Saturday 25-6. Monongahela showed unexpected strength and compelled the local team to exert their full strength in order to make the victory decisive. Short periods prevented Monessen from scoring two more touchdowns, for the local team had the ball on Monongahela's 5 yard line at the end of the first half and on the two yard line at the end of the game.

When the game started Schmidt was not in the local lineup and it was not until after Monongahela scored on a forward pass near the end of the third quarter that he was inserted into the lineup. His presence soon showed in the scoring for Monessen made two touchdowns in the last quarter and had the ball on the two yard line again when the whistle blew for the end of the game. Miller, who substituted for Schmidt during the first three quarters played a fine game. It was the first game he had been in and his work surpassed the expectations of Coach Townsend.

From the time the game started there was never any doubt concerning the outcome. Monessen received the kick and carried the ball straight down the field for a touchdown. Monongahela elected to receive the kick and was thrown on its own thirty-five yard line. Monongahela immediately started to plunge the line and bit off tackle with Cain, their big full back carrying the ball. They made two first downs, after they were stopped by Monessen. Cain punted to Anderson and the quarter ended with Monessen in possession of the ball on her own 20-yard line. Monessen made several good gains through the line but was penalized for offside.

Hanlan now hurled a forward pass to Capt. Hannigan for a gain of 30 yards. Monessen now began a series of end runs and line plunges which soon netted them their second touchdown. Mon City received the kick again but after several futile attempts at forward passing punted to Anderson. Monessen started another march down the field but time was up with Monessen on the 5 yard line.

The second half started with Monongahela receiving the ball. Cain hit the line for Monongahela's third first down of the game. He hit the line again but did not gain. Capt. Hannigan then drawn up to help stop Cain's terrific line plunging. Seeing their opportunity Mon City hurled a beautiful pass over center and the receiver got away for the seven yard line before he was thrown by Vecchio. Three consecutive plunges by the same player were unable to gain a first down, the ball pass then going to Monessen on only four downs on the goal.

Monessen punted from the kick, giving the ball to Monongahela on their thirty yard line. A fast end run by Monongahela netted them 45 yards, Schmidt was injured on the play and was forced to retire. On the first play he received the ball with a yard to go and the second time Vecchio tried put in one foot from the goal. Vecchio was given the ball but was stopped dead by Cain. The quarter ended.

Schmidt carried the ball over by yards on the next play. Monongahela received the kick and immediately began passing, but with no success. Came punted and Monessen was down on their forty yard line. The local team now carried the ball for their second touchdown of the half with long end runs by Capt. Hannigan featuring Schmidt with the touchdown.

Monongahela received the kick again and again tried passing but without success. A fumble was recovered by Myford for Monessen. The locals now carried the ball to the two yard line and the whistle blew ending the game.

Great spirit was manifested by both teams throughout the contest and the game was one of the best of the season. The line plunging of the future Mon City's play while Capt. Hannigan and Schmidt starred for Monessen. Capt. Hannigan ran the team fantastic by also making many brilliant runs. Vecchio was unable to play as well as usual on account of Monday and Schmidt's defense in anticipation of his smashing. Anderson's fine punting was unable to get away with any long runs. Monessen will not show up as well as they will have to beat up if [illegible] Nov. 22 at Uniontown.

Community Shocked By Sudden Death

The community was shocked Saturday night when it was learned that Freddie Lindauer, well known pianist had died suddenly while seated in the orchestra pit at the Coyle theatre, in Charleroi, where he was employed as leader of the orchestra. Death was due to acute indigestion. The deceased became ill during the first show at the theatre and secured the services of a physician. After a short rest at his home he resumed his seat at the piano. The audience listened with wonderment the playing of the popular young pianist, who seemed to be giving them his masterpiece and even other members of the orchestra stopped playing and were giving their leader rapt attention when suddenly his hand went into then air and he fell from his seat. Members of the orchestra gently picked him up and carried him to his apartment above the theatre, but he was dead before he reached his home.

For years "Freddie" was known to thousands in the valley. He has thrilled audiences in this city and several surrounding towns. While here he played at the Bijou, Luna, Olympic and Star theatres, and was acclaimed by all to be the best in his line. It has been but several weeks since Freddie left Monessen, having resigned his position at the Olympic theatre to accept a similar one at the Coyle theatre, which he held at the time of his sudden and unexpected death.

Deceased was 36 years of age and is survived by his wife and young son, and daughter; two brothers and two sisters, in Boston and one sister in San Francisco. He was a member of the Moose and Eagles in this city and also of the Musicians Protective Association. Funeral services will be held Wednesday at two o'clock from the home of his father in-law, Albert Bertche at 317 Washington avenue, Charleroi. Interment will be made in the Monongahela cemetery.

Council Meeting

Council held a meeting Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock with all members present except Messrs. Stephens and Kruell. A report of the committee that conferred with attorneys in Greensburg over the dispute with the street car company was made. An opinion as to method of procedure will likely be received today in written form. Council, however, decided to bring the matter to the attention of the Public Service Commission. A motion was made authorizing an additional loan of $20,000 to meet estimates for paving and bridge repairs. The meeting was then adjourned.

Prepares Message

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8—President Wilson is preparing his final message to Congress, it was learned today. The message will be delivered to the final session of the 66th congress, which begins December 6th.

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 8.—Mrs. Louise Stout who was found burned to death in the ruins of her bed is believed to have committed suicide by pouring kerosene over the bed and setting fire to it.

Dr. I. B. Schoaf a West Newton boy son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schoaf, who for a number of years has successfully followed the practice of dental surgery in Donora on the first of this month removed to New York City where he will engage in his profession. It is probable that he will locate in the Aeolian building at the corner of Broadway and 42nd street. In addition to the splendid opportunity offered him in New York, Dr. Schoaf is led to make the change because of the convenience it offers Mrs. Schoaf to continue her studies in Grand Opera. Mrs. Schoaf has been a student in the Aborn Operatic School and expects to finish her course during the coming year. Dr. Schoaf graduated in 1904 and located in Donora in 1912. In addition to marked success in his profession he had gained distinction as a trap shooter and big game huntsman, only last spring qualifying for the state championship shoot at Harrisburg in June, where he was second high gun with scores of 155 and 156.

The Knights of Columbus have organized a duckpin bowling league with four teams as follows: McKeesport, Charleroi, Donora and Monessen. The season will open here next Friday evening when the Charleroi team will be the attraction.

Pres.-elect Harding Leaves For Vacation

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

On Board Harding Special Enroute Point Isabel, Texas, Nov. 8.—After 48 hours continuous travel President elect Warren G. Harding was nearing Point Isabel, Texas, today, where he will spend ten days fishing and golfing. His special train was due to arrive at Brownsville at 11:30 a. m. There the party will take automobiles for the 20-mile ride to Point Isabel on Laguna de la Madre, an inlet of the Gulf of Mexico. Politics, office-seekers and all weighty matters will be tabooed. Harding carefully refrained from inviting anyone to Point Isabel, other than those in his immediate personal party. A guard of secret service men is on hand to restrain anyone whose enthusiasm leads him too close to the president-elect.

Senator Harding's daily program will be fishing half of each day and golfing the other half.

Despite Harding's effort to avoid speeches enroute, he has made a dozen already. Several thousand people at Poplar Bluffs, Mo., got him out at 1:30 a. m., Sunday for a short talk.

It was difficult for Harding to keep within the Sabbath proprieties, so insistent were the throngs at every station. Many apparently motored long distances, for parked around each railroad station were dozens of automobiles covered with the bright red clay of eastern Texas.

At one stop Harding bought a pencil from a blind peddler. He and each for half an hour. Everywhere Mrs. Harding also took in the engine they were given warm receptions which recalled the campaign trips of a few weeks ago.

Advisors close to Harding believe the conference with American leaders which begins at Marion as soon as the senator is back from his vacation will deal with the idea of an international court built around The Hague tribunal and a supplemental association of nations which would be in the form of recommendations which would have sufficient moral weight to attract the support of member nations.

Harding's counsel as precedent-setter will be guided by a strong desire to do nothing that might cause criticism of President Wilson or appear to be an attempt to undermine his authority in international affairs. Harding feels the delicacy of his position particularly because of the complicated international situation and he is making every effort to avoid doing

From his tale of the trip one would be led to believe that he had scorn the country of all the cotton tales, but his friends insist they have first hand information that the total results of Mr. Myers' efforts were two rabbits and several injured cows.

Attorney General to Be Called For Explanation

By JON E CHAMBERLAIN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 8.—Activities of the United States department of justice in the alleged suppression of evidence in the case of 125 coal miners and operators charged with conspiracy to limit production were to be given close scrutiny when trial of the miners and operators opened here today.

Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer defeated candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, may be summoned here from Washington to explain why certain alleged facts were ordered eliminated by him in the government's case. The facts, it was said, have weakened the case to such an extent that those in charge of the prosecution are expected to either seek a continuance when the case is called before Federal Judge Anderson on or drop it entirely.

Investigation of Palmer's connection with the case which was the outgrowth of the soft coal miners' strike a year ago, was initiated by Judge Anderson. Anderson sent an invitation to Palmer last week inviting him to be here today. He informed Palmer that he intended to investigate the charges and was incensed when Palmer failed to appear. Palmer was represented by Assistant Attorney General Frierson, who left for Washington last night. Frierson refused to make any statement regarding the case.

Charges that Palmer had suppressed evidence favorable to the miners and operators were made by Senator Kenyon, Republican, Iowa, and Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, during the senate investigation of the coal strike. Palmer denied the charges.

Following the refusal of Palmer to appear before Anderson, Anderson issued a subpoena for Palmer to appear here today. Palmer refused to obey the subpoena and Anderson issued a writ of attachment for Palmer. Palmer refused to obey the writ and Anderson issued a writ of habeas corpus

REPUBLICAN IN POLITICS

NO ONE-MAN JOB

The overwhelming and decisive answer of the people to President Wilson's "solemn referendum" places upon the Republican party a great responsibility and the statements of the President-elect and others close to him indicate clearly his conception of the obligations imposed upon the standard bearer and the party to unscramble the confused Government at Washington and permit the Constitution to function along the lines designed by the founders of the Republic

Four years is not a long time to accomplish the many important things which must be done to restore to America a Government of the people, by the people and for the people after the amazing autocracy, but with the manifest purpose of Warren G Harding and Calvin Coolidge and those associated with them in authority to sweep away the mistaken isms and notions of the White House autocrat there is assurance of a better day and happier people in every part of the United States

Between now and the installation of the Republican regime at Washington on the 4th of March the great minds of the party newly commissioned will doubtless be summoned for the adoption of a program which will be adhered to and made effective as soon as possible

Also a proper association of the nation will doubtless be brought about through the safeguarding of American interests, all of which might have been easily possible months ago had not Mr Wilson insisted upon his own arbitrary conception of what was right and proper without any real understanding of the thought of his countrymen on this subject

The little men who have been applauding his every move will quickly pass into the obscurity whence they came and the type of American citizen which is now required to give substantial character to the structure of our Government will take his proper place in the affairs of the country

There has never been a period in our history when so many mediocre men basked for a little time in the sunlight of power and place as during the last eight years. All this will quickly pass and for the good of the people of every class

Certain political influences which were exerted here and there to perpetuate the Wilson dynasty proved much weaker than had been imagined, even among those who were satisfied that the people would rebuke the President and fling back such a verdict as would crush for all time in this country the czarism that has brought about demoralization in Europe

The most significant lesson is that which teaches the fundamental strength of our citizenry and points the way to still higher levels of the American civilization that has been so long a beacon light to the oppressed of all lands Wilsonism as another name for autocracy has been crushed to earth for years to come

And the good sense and patriotism of the people will control throughout the administration which they have authorized in the unmistakable results of last Tuesday It will be no one-man government the solemn referendum settled that point.

FINEGAN POINTS WAY

Dr Thomas E Finegan, the Superintendent of Public Instruction has a wide vision of Pennsylvania and its future from the educational standpoint and through the enthusiastic co-operation of Governor Sproul is confident of making great headway during the next year It may not be generally known that over 7,000 young men were denied admission to the colleges of Pennsylvania this year, including 2,000 at State College alone, owing to lack of facilities and sufficient buildings

Pennsylvania has just scratched its enormous resources and during the war it was demonstrated through chemical research that millions of dollars could be saved from the present mountains of waste of one kind and another In short, that proper provision for training of our young men in the sciences and practical research lines would more than compensate for any additional facilities

Dr Finegan has the Commonwealth back of him and as he has been going up and down the State he has discovered an increasing desire on the part of the people to put Pennsylvania in its proper relation to education and otherwise on the map in more ways than one. Its untold resources, its great variety of mineral and agricultural and other factors for the upbuilding of the Commonwealth appeal to all who give the matter any thought Finegan is leading the way and with the fog and unrest of the war period being dissipated rapidly, we are certain to enter upon a new era of progress under his direction and thru the co-operation of the agencies that are being co-ordinated for an educational expansion movement such as Pennsylvania has never known

SOAP AND SOCKS IN SUMATRA

Wearing of Hosiery Is an Indication That the Wearer Earns at Least $20 a Month.

Soap and socks in Sumatra—ten years ago the observant mind of a consulate representative of the United States in that island would have devoted less thought to such matters, but now the Internationalization of commerce gives soap and socks in Sumatra their place in the sun The natives, it appears from a recent consular report are more and more taking to wearing socks Those simple garments of extremities one judges are becoming an indication that the wearer earns at least $20 a month American socks are well thought of, as are American soaps, but more socks and soaps from America can be sold in Sumatra if the American dealers in these commodities will give more thought to local taste in decorating the boxes or wrappers in which they go on sale in the bazars Those buyers in Sumatra like their soaps and socks done up in bright colored boxes, in fact they are inclined to judge the contents by the boxes, from their point of view at the box The picture of an American manufacturing plant leaves them cold nor do they care for a wrapper decorated with landscapes in colors Particularly in the matter of hosiery they like the box decorated with some brightly colored picture which catches the eye and appeals to the imagination by its "human interest" One judges that it would be good policy for American dealers in soaps and socks to discard their present containers and employ some of the artists who make covers for the popular magazines to design and paint them new ones particularly for the Sumatra market—Christian Science Monitor.

ODDITIES OF GERMAN VOTE

Peculiar Sentiments Revealed in Recent Balloting for Members of Reichstag.

The total number of valid votes cast at the recent election in Germany for the 446 members of the reichstag was 26,017,700 The votes that had to be thrown out ran into the thousands. One woman wrote on her ballot "I am voting for you major ity socialists this time, but unless I can get Westphalian ham this is made in Westphalia from now on I'll never do it again" Quite a few votes were cast for the kaiser on the ground that "if elected the humiliation would serve him right" One man from Magdeburg deposited instead of his ballot a five mark note without comment

But the prize ballot came from Linden It was a piece of wrapping paper on which was written "Isaiah 42, 23-24" The verses read: "Show the things that are to come hereafter that we may know that ye are gods; yea do good or do evil that we may be dismayed and behold it together Behold, ye are of nothing and your work of naught, an abomination is he that chooseth you"

NATIONAL FLOWER OF FRANCE

Iris, or Fleur-de-Lis Was Originally Called the Fleur-de Louis—Valued for Its Medicinal Purposes.

The iris, or the fleur de lis, is the national flower of France It was originally called the fleur de Louis The ancients valued it highly for medicinal purposes. A powder made from the root, mixed with honey, was used for broken bones and it was also considered beneficial to snake and scorpion bites A valuable perfume and oil was also obtained from the iris.

The legend as to how the flower received its name goes back to the Greeks Iris was the messenger of the gods, and the rainbow was allocated to her On her birthday June buried all the flowers to celebrate the occasion They all came in their prettiest frocks Among them were three sisters gorgeously dressed in yellow, purple, yellow and red and who were named Sweet Pea Lad no but they were called Fleur because their gowns were the color of the rainbow

Since iris was the messenger of the gods and conducted the souls of dead women to their final resting place the Greeks decorated the graves of their women with purple iris

This flower was also used in old Egyptian architecture It signified power and eloquence to the Egyptians and was therefore carved on the brow of the Sphinx, and upon the scepters of their kings

Murderer Confesses

St. Louis, Nov. 7.—Edna Ellis, the 18 year old typist, whose body was found Friday with her throat slashed in a vacant lot near her home here was killed by Albert Ellis, aged 21, a rejected suitor according to a signed confession Ellis made to the police today.

The report that Ellis had confessed spread rapdly and a large crowd grouped outside the police station where he is held. Police made unsuccessful attempts to keep the people moving, but there was little talk of violence.

According to Ellis' alleged confession, he intended to commit suicide, but the blade of the razor he used broke as he slashed the threat of his victim the third time.

Ellis, who is an electrician, only admitted the killing after several hours' grilling, according to the police. He was arrested Saturday morning on information furnished by Mrs. Marie Ellis, mother of the slain girl. She said Ellis who formerly lived at her home, had threatened her daughter for breaking off their engagement after a quarrel.

According to the alleged confession, Ellis waited at the corner on Thursday night, where she left the car on returning from work, but she refused to talk to him, the police say, and started to cut through a vacant lot to her home.

Ellis is said to have stated that he followed the girl and struck her, knocking her down. When she arose according to the alleged confession, he attacked her with the razor. When the girl's body was found both hands were badly lacerated.

The alleged slayer is said to have admitted that the girl saw the razor and struggled with him, at the same time begging him not to cut her.

Not Monkey Glands!

mething New: Sheep and Cattle Gland Substance in Tablet Form Combined with Iron.

Quite often recently newspapers ve reported cases of money gland eatment. But now it seems that other method of treating run down nditions is being used. Instead of onkey glands, people are now us- g gland extracts taken from healy young sheep and cattle, prepared tablet form with iron and other nic ingredients and eaten as one ould eat any tablet.

The reason for the benefits se- red by gland extracts, according those who have given the subject se study, is that our tiny glands vern the building-up process of the lions of cells in our bodies. When tire easily and are weak, run- wn, thin, anaemic and listless, it would appear that our glands may not be secreting the proper amount of "hormones," which the new tablets attempt to supply.

This tablet containing gland extracts combined with iron and other ingredients has been formulated under the supervision of the Glandex Company, Inc., 244 West 29th Street, New York, and can be procured of any druggist under the name of Glandex Compound. So confident are the manufacturers of the merit of Glandex Compound that druggists are authorized to refund the purchase price after two weeks should results be unsatisfactory.

Note: $1,000 will be paid by the Glandex Company, Inc., to anyone proving that Glandex Compound does not contain genuine desiccated gland substance (popularly known as Gland Extracts) from sheep and cattle. 1t anything which might appear to be anticipating assumption of presidential authority. He believes that he can properly confer with leading Americans even before taking office and he has arranged to do this as a time-saving measure so that he can go into office with his international court and world association plans well formulated. They will then have reached the stage where representatives of foreign nations can be called in to confer over plans which have been approved by leaders of various groups of American thought.

Harding will not see President-elect Obregon, of Mexico, while on the border. His view is that it would be a marked impropriety and discourtesy to President Wilson.

In his Texas speeches Harding is emphasizing that there is no rancor in his heart.

"We have our differences politically," he said at one stop. "But no one would ever question that both parties want to do the very best for America. Just now the party to which I belong is called to power and we are not going to be partisan but just fellow Americans."

It Needed Attention.

He had been sent to a certain suburb to tune a piano. He found the instrument in good condition, and not in the least need of attention.

A few days later the employer received a letter from the owner of the piano, a lady of middle musical proclivities, saying that the piano had not been properly tuned. It was no better than before.

After receiving a reprimand from his employer, the tuner found he must make another trip and again tested every note, only to find as previously, no fault with the instrument. This time he told the lady so.

"Yes," she said. "It does seem all right, doesn't it, when you play it for us, but as soon as I begin to sing it gets all out of tune." London Tit-Bits.

THIS SHOE FACTORY UNIQUE

How Women of the Belcher Islands Prepare the Walrus Hide for Foot Coverings.

The most peculiar boot factory in the world is probably that on the Belcher islands, a small, barren, rock-ribbed group belonging to Canada, and 300 miles from the nearest Hudson Bay post off the Nastapokas. The shoes are made by the women of the colony, and are created from the skin of tanned walrus hides. The process that precedes the actual shaping of the boots consists of the women sitting in a row with large squares of hide in their hands, and solemnly chewing it inch by inch until the fat is removed from the hide. They squeeze the hide from time to time to loosen it up, and then go on with the chewing hour after hour.

For clothing the natives use the skins of eider duck, with the feathers worn inside, and while this makes a costume that has not been equaled for keeping out the cold, the odor arising from the skin is such that the few white explorers who have reached the island urged a return to Adam and Eve costume during their stay.

The first knowledge of the islands and their inhabitants came when Robert Flaherty, 21 years old, adventured out in the pay of Sir William MacKenzie, to locate them on the uncertain basis of an Indian legend. The admiralty chart showed that here was 20 fathoms of water where the islands are. Flaherty returned in triumph to disprove this.

The Alley Dog.

An alley dog they called him, a tramp and worse things still. Stones they flung at him. On their porches in the evening they abused him and plotted against his life. And all because he was ownerless and unkempt in his tawny shagginess. But, with all their stone throwing and brandishing of sticks, he ambled good-naturedly along and sought the company of the children, who knew not his reputation among righteous citizens and loved him in spite of his dirty coat. He played with them until unappreciative grownups chased him away.

And then one day his whole life changed. With a group of his child mates he went to the nearby river. He watched them prepare for a swim. Suddenly he noticed that one was struggling hard. He leaped into the river. What happened after that he no longer knows. He knows only that the little boy was saved and that he is now a respected member of the little boy's family.

No longer is he called an alley dog. No more do irate men plot his death. He used to wonder why. Now he has ceased to wonder. He merely rests his cool, moist nose on contemplative paws—content at last at having come into his own.—Milwaukee Journal.

HEART REVIVED BY MASSAGE

Dr. Petti of Buenos Aires Performs Remarkable Feat on Woman Patient Who Recovers After Long Fight.

Doctor Petti of Buenos Aires was shocked on making an incision in a woman's abdomen to find that no blood flowed and that his patient was pulseless. She had collapsed under the chloroform. Artificial respiration had no effect. Caffeine was injected both under the skin and into the veins with no result.

The surgeon then extended the incision he had made, inserted his hand and took hold of the woman's heart to massage it. He squeezed the heart with both hands, but at first it did not respond. All at once a powerful contraction was felt, followed by others. The massage was stopped, but had to be resumed at once. The contractions reappeared but the massage was continued and inhalations of oxygen were given. At last the patient was out of danger.

She remained unconscious for a long time, and when she recovered had no idea how close she had been to passing out. Her recovery was very slow, being complicated by violent delirium, but she got well at last.

Washing Rugs.

When either rugs or small carpets require washing dissolve four ounces of good white soap in four ounces of boiling water. When cool, add five ounces of glycerin and two ounces of chloroform. Bottle and cork well for use. When needed add one teaspoonful of the preparation to a pail of tepid water and wash the carpet with a flannel and soap in the usual way. One wash will have a wonderfully cleaning and brightening effect. Stretch out on a flat space, tightly nailing the corners or sides if necessary.

TRADE MARK

There are many tractors clamoring for the patronage of the farmer. The very air is charged with the noise of claims. One would think that all the farmer had to do was to buy a Tractor and he would enter into the Millenium.

Well, consider this fact—there are a great many different makes of Tractors. Tractors have been on the American market for twenty years. In that time some three hundred thousand Tractors have been sold to the farmers in the United States. The Fordson Tractor has only been on the market two years, and in that time more than one hundred thousand Fordson Tractors have been sold to the farmers of the United States.

Two and two make four. Two and two will always make four. If the Fordson Tractor had not delivered more good work, more satisfactory work, more economical work than any other farm Tractor, it would not have sold in the ratio of anywhere from five and more to one. "The proof of the pudding is in the eating." The proof of the superior merits of the Fordson Tractor is in its larger sale and use.

The Fordson Tractor then asks you to buy it because of what it has done for your neighbors. It asks you to buy it on its merit. It asks to buy it Mr. Farmer because you have use for it every day in the year. All the uses for the Fordson Tractor have not yet been uncovered because new places where machine power can take the place of human power, where machine power can supplant horse and mule-power, are being found every week, and whenever such discovery occurs, the Fordson Tractor will fill the bill more satisfactorily than any other form of power.

The Fordson is simple in design, and it is very strongly made of the highest quality of iron and steel. It is the product of the greatest mechanical genius the world has ever known, and it is most economical in first cost and after expense. The Fordson Tractor on your farm will increase the value of every foot of ground in that farm. It will put more dollars and cents into every hour you put into the farm.

Why not have a Fordson right away? Take up the subject with us. Come in and get the details, and all the particulars. It is only a matter of time until you buy a farm Tractor—that is sure. So don't put it off when it means money to you to act promptly.

MOVIE STARS

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS.

(© 1920 by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

There was a brilliant smile playing about Myra's lips as she turned away from the telephone. It was a smile famous throughout many lands, for Myra was one of those stars that twinkled the length and breadth of filmland.

At the other end of the wire, young Lord Gerald Rollins turned away with a heavy sigh. He had spoken the words that would permit an entire movie company to encamp in his wonderful ancestral home during the entire summer months. But Lord Gerald had been badly done during the war and money was scarce in his tweed pockets.

England had never looked more beautiful nor the gardens of Hill Hall more enchanting when the large company, bag and baggage, drew up under the vast gates and brought huge touring cars to a stop.

Lord Gerald was out on the porch to watch the arrival. It was all so new to him that he felt himself taking a huge interest in the proceedings.

Then, out of a great black touring car stepped Myra. Lord Gerald caught a swift breath. The little American movie star was exquisite to a degree quite disconcerting. She came up to him with frankly curious eyes.

"You are Lord Rollins, aren't you?" she questioned, while her wide intelligent eyes appraised and passed splendid judgment on him. "We are so glad to get here and are all weary—every one of us," including her entire company in a glance; "but your estate is wonderful—quite beyond my meager power of expression."

"You will appreciate a cup of tea?" Lord Gerald suggested, and led the way into the great hall, with its fine collection of rare old paintings; "then Perkins will show you your rooms."

"Lord Rollins," she said, with characteristic frankness, "if I could find a leading man like you for my hero I would pay him a thousand dollars a week. You are the living image of the lover in my story—at least the very type I want."

He scarcely recognized his own voice nor his own sudden leap into a world hitherto unknown.

"Topping salary! I say, Miss Dawson, would I be an awful dub at acting?"

"Lord Rollins!" cried Myra swiftly, "if you would consent to act with me in a series of five pictures, and perhaps more. I will make the salary three thousand a week. I shall want to advertise," she added. "Your name will be worth as much as your—manner," she finished with her first touch of shyness.

"The die is cast," laughed Lord Rollins boyishly, and put out a too white hand—the war had left him a bit delicate.

The tea cart arrived, well laden with thin bread and butter, Devonshire cream and strawberries. The situation straightway became normal, for every one drifted in from various doorways, famished for tea.

Lord Rollins never forgot that first tea party when, under his ancestral roof, the entire Myra Dawson film company partook of his hospitality.

Myra was constantly on the alert for scenes, and the conversation jumped at random from English springtime to American skyscrapers, but ever and anon Lord Rollins found that his eyes were meeting the pair of brilliant ones belonging to Myra.

"Topping summer this will be," he found himself thinking, and for the first time since a bursting shell had flung him face downward on the battlefield Lord Rollins felt the warm blood dancing through his body with the sheer joy of being alive.

He proved neither a wonderful nor yet a too bad movie actor. His movements when under the scrutiny of Myra were a bit stilted, but she was most encouraging and splendidly helpful. Working with her was a pleasure far beyond any Lord Rollins had experienced. The novelty, the excitement and the occasional delightful love scenes through which he acted with Myra all helped to lead him back to the old-time health and strength.

It was during the third reel of their second play, when, as per direction, he was pressing a smothering kiss on the fair heroine's left cheek, that Lord Rollins spoke not reel but real love words.

"I love you, Myra," he said, while the camera man kept winding; "I have never loved anyone before—you will marry me—dear?

"I love you, too," Myra told him softly, and her cheek turned more closely to the hero's, "but I cannot be the wife of an English lord. I am of very common birth, dear. My people worked for a living."

The entire company seemed suddenly to have drifted in and taken up front row positions, as if scenting romance spelled with a large R.

"Dear heart," the young lord continued, unconscious of the interest of the audience, "you are talking utter nonsense—I love you—love you."

The crowd of players waited breathlessly.

Myra turned then and looked tenderly into Lord Rollins' pleading eyes. "We will continue our partnership, my dear," she said simply.

The camera men stepped in the nick of time. The final love kiss was not exactly due in the reel, but apparently this one was.

It was perhaps the most notable wedding in England and assuredly one of the happiest.

"PARIS COMES TO AMERICA"

English Visitor Finds French Influence, Especially in Architecture.

It used to be said that good Americans when they died went to Paris. The Parisian lure no doubt is still powerful; but every day I should guess that more of Paris comes to America. The upper parts of New York have boulevards and apartment houses very like the real thing. And I noticed that the architecture of France exerts a special attraction for the rich man decreeing himself a pleasure dome.

There are millionaires' residences in New York that might have been transplanted not only from the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne but from Touraine itself; while when I made my pilgrimage to Mr. Widener's, just outside Philadelphia, I found Rembrandt's "Mill," and Manet's dead bull fighter, and a Vermeer, and a little meadow painted divinely by Colot and El Greco's family group and Donatello's St. George, and one of the most lovely scenes that ever was created by Turner's enchanted brush, all enshrined in a palace which Louis Seize might have built.

But America is still more French than this. Her women can not be less demure than those of France, although they suggest a cooler blood and less dependence on male society; her shops can be as distinguished as those of the Rue de la Paix and far more costly; and her bread is better than France's best. Moreover, when it comes to night, and the Broadway constellations challenge the darkness, New York leaves Paris far behind. For every cabaret and supper resort that Paris can provide New York has three; and for every dancing floor in Paris New York has 30.

Good Americans, however, will still remain faithful to their old posthumous love, if only for her wine.—E. V. Lucas in The Outlook.

SHIPS' SIRENS SOUND CODES

Whistle Blasts Give All Information Necessary to All Whom It May Concern.

As ships pass in and out of port their sirens sound a code which enables all that is necessary to be said to all who it may concern. Two ships, one concealed from the other by the vessel they are taking to her berth, will rattle away, one telling the other what to do, and perhaps each in turn pleading with the pilot on the liner's bridge to stop the engines, to go ahead or astern, or do half a dozen things.

Sirens of the big shipping lines mostly have individual notes, and they have calls of their own when nearing port. The Cunarder announces her approach by three long blasts, the White Star and Allan liner by three, Hamburg four, while Leylands vessels run to six sounded in three tones, with a marked interval between each pair. Ships of the African line have a three-fold call, one long and two short; Johnsons are quite partisans with eight, Alexandra uses five, and Rees uses two long and two short, while the Cork boats adhere to their old formula of Cock a doodle doo.

NOW KNOWN TO BE CLOUDS

Up to Year 1900 the Projections on Mars Had Been Thought to Be Mountains.

The first observers of projections on Mars had attributed them to the same cause that produces projections on the moon—that is, mountains. Such they were said to be in France and at Lick. This view, however, was in 1892 disputed by W. H. Pickering, who considered them to be not mountains, but clouds. This view was supported by A. E. Douglass, who observed them in 1892 at Flagstaff, Ariz. The mountain theory of their generation was shown to be untenable and their assumption to clouds proved to be the correct theory in December, 1900. Only a single projection was visible in 1900, 1901 and 1903. As a mountain does not change its place, and as nothing was seen where something had been visible, the phenomenon was proved to not be a mountain peak. Now the only other thing capable of catching the light before it reached the surface would be something suspended in the air—that is, a cloud. Deductions therefore, from the rarity of the phenomenon alone showed that the projections must be clouds. Furthermore, the projection was smaller after the lapse of 24 hours. The something that caused it was not only not attached to the soil, but was moving and dissipating as it moved along. Clouds are the only bodies known to us which account for these metamorphoses. Clouds, then, and not mountains, are the explanation of the projections of Mars.—"Mars and Its Canals," by Percival Lowell.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. For 17 years he used these tablets (a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil) in his private practice with great success.

They do all the good that calomel does but have no bad after effects. No pains, no griping, no injury to the gums or danger from acid foods—yet they stimulate the liver and bowels. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." Note how they clear clouded brain and perk up the spirits.

SHOWING GROWTH OF DOLLAR

How Benjamin Franklin's Bequest of $5,000 to Boston Has Increased in a Century.

How the dollar invested works for the individual himself has been best illustrated by that first great American teacher of thrift, Benjamin Franklin, remarks World's Work. In 1791 he bequeathed £1,000 to the commonwealth of Massachusetts and to the city of Boston as a mark of his appreciation for having appointed him as agent in England at the "handsome" salary of £1,000. And to make his bequest really valuable, with his great foresight Franklin provided in his will that this £1,000 should be put out at 5 per cent interest for 100 years, that at the end of that time 31-131 of the fund accumulated should again be put out at interest for another hundred years and then the fund be divided one-fourth to Boston and three-fourths to the state.

Let us see how well that £1,000 of Franklin's has worked. At the end of the first hundred years it had grown to $131,333.62. It was then divided in accordance with the will; $75,300.48 was set aside for "public work" and $102,085.15 was started on its course of earning interest for another hundred years. That was in 1891. On Jan. 1, 1918, this sum had grown to $267,805.15 and at this rate of increase the fund should amount to at least $6,000,000 when the second period is completed, and may be considerably more.

ONE'S JOB MUST COME FIRST

Salary Should Be a Secondary Object for the Man Who Is Anxious to Advance.

I have never known a young man to advance far when he thought much about his salary while at work, or who let that salary have anything to do with the interest he was putting into his job. The job is the chance the opportunity, to show what you are made of, to show what you have for sale—your abilities, your personality.

If you [illegible] for sale you have what every employer is always looking for. It's one of the curious [illegible] If you try to slump everything that goes through your hands, whatever it is, you may be sure that you will soon find a place at the front of the office corridor.

On the other hand, the man who drags through just enough work to get by, who gets to the job late and is the first one out, who [illegible] to go home will [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Quitting your job [illegible] [illegible] could to be a success. It is not what you are paid for doing, but what you do that you are not paid for that is the key to the position above you. This is almost [illegible]

England's "Jills" Building Houses

(By United Press)

London, Nov. 8.—"This is the house that Jill built.

The Jills of England are competing with the Jacks in many trades hitherto monopolized by men and an interesting adventure into the building trade is now being made by a firm styled "Woman Builders" which has its offices at 56 Victoria Street.

The women's pioneer in this movement is Mrs Oliver Strackey, who has just completed the building of her own house at Haslemere. For this house she was her own contractor and employed almost exclusively female labor, women ramming the walls, shoveling the earth and distempering the rooms

However, a mere man bricklayer built the chimneys and a burly male carpenter made the doors.

Mrs. Strachey is now busy building another house and is increasing her number of women workers. Many ex-tarmerettes and others have applied to her for employment in the building trade. In the spring the Private Company which is being formed with Mrs Strachey at its head will launch out on a bigger scale and undertake the building of houses large and small, cottages, garages, etc, for clients who can, if they wish, supply their own plans.

On the first house she built, Mrs. Strachey claims she saved at least $1,000 and the establishment male contractors are beginning to look to their laurels, for the women have proved themselves just as efficient as men at the work and quite a lot quicker.

Y.M.C.A. and Dancing

(By United Press)

Philadelphia, Nov. 8—Terpsichoreans here were manifesting a great deal of interest over the controversy on dancing that is raging between the Y. M. C. A. and the Philadelphia Presbytery.

The Young Men's Christian Association has announced that it will include dancing in its varied curriculum, inasmuch as demands have been received from large numbers of Christian peoples asking that we organize a dancing class."

The local Presbytery, however, who say they represent a large number of the Christian element, "felt it ought to object strenuously to a Christian organization conducting a class of dancing in its walls."

"The youth of today demands dancing," the Y. M. C. A. countered, "and it is far safer for young men and women to receive instruction in the art under the careful supervision of Christian instructors. The Y. M. C. A feels that when this amusement is so conducted, it is free from evil and helpful rather than a harmful creature from a social standpoint.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

May Pass the Critical Period Safely and Comfortably by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Summit, N. J.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound during Change of Life and I think it is a good remedy in such a condition. I could not digest my food and had much pain and burning in my stomach after meals. I could not sleep, had backache, and worst of all were the hot flashes. I saw in the papers about Vegetable Compound so I tried it. Now I feel all right and can work better. You have my permission to publish this letter." —VICTORIA KOPPL, 21 Oak Ridge Ave., Summit, N. J.

If you have warning symptoms such as a sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backache, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness, inquietude, and dizziness, get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begin taking the medicine at once. We know it will help you as it did Mrs. Koppl.

DON'T SUFFER WITH NEURALGIA

Use Soothing Musterole

When those sharp pains go shooting through your head, when your skull seems as if it would split, just rub a little Musterole on your temples and neck. It draws out the inflammation, soothes away the pain, usually giving quick relief.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. Better than a mustard plaster and does not blister.

Many doctors and nurses frankly recommend Musterole for sore throat, bronchitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet—colds of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia). It is always dependable.

Marshal Foch and His Peace-Time Job

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris, Nov. 1—Marshal Foch, who two years ago, November 11 received the surrender of the German armies at Rethondes in Compiegne Forest, today holds the theoretically imposing position of military adviser to the world.

His official title is "president of the Interallied Military Commission of Versailles. "This body is a continuation of the old Supreme Command of the war. Its function is to act as general clearinghouse for all military affairs touching the former Allies It includes representatives from all the former belligerents except the United States and Central powers, and holds frequent meetings in Paris.

Behind the little blue sign "Etat-Major de Marechal Foch," at 34 Boulevard de Courecilles, the conqueror of Germany sits at his office desk every morning from 10 until noon and every afternoon from 2:30 until 5. His aides report he is busy most of the time—reading telegrams from military attaches of Allied nations in various parts of the world, conferring with military representatives of various powers, preparing reports for the Council of Ambassadors when military counsel is needed, giving advice to some of the younger Allies now carrying on little wars of their own, etc.

From time to time he quits Paris to accompany the premier of France as general military adviser at one of the many conferences of prime ministers which have been one of the new features of European diplomacy since the war.

He generally travels in the same railway coach in which he was living when he received the German commander, Nov. 11, 1918. This coach is always at his personal disposal, whether for official or unofficial trips. Sometimes his wife accompanies him—on the unofficial journeys.

Foch's relation to the French army is the same as it was during the latter part of the war. Being head of the interallied military staff he is barred from active command in any of the national armies but free to give advice whenever required.

In addition to his professional duties, Marshall Foch has a secondary but rather time-consuming "ceremonial" role which frequently calls him away from his family hearth to speak at Inter-allied or French memorial services, International dinners, corner-stone layings and the like.

For the world at large and France in particular he is still the living personification of the Victory for which it paid so dearly in human life

LONG LOST USE OF WINGS

Ground Parrot, Found Only in New Zealand, Interesting to the Student of Evolution.

The wingless birds of New Zealand are particularly interesting to the nature student as illustrating the process of evolution. Nowhere but in their native land could these birds have survived, and, therefore, nowhere else would they have become wingless. New Zealand is the only region on earth where there are no destructive animals. Being unable to fly, the birds could not, of course, have escaped from any swift hunting animals such as abound in all other lands. It is interesting to note that the kakapo, or ground parrot, once had the use of its wings, but being a grass seed feeder and finding no enemies on the ground gradually ceased to fly and eventually lost the use of its wings entirely, though it can run very swiftly. These birds are so gentle and so unconscious of having any enemies that if a person sits down near one and keeps quiet it will presently tuck its head under its wing and go to sleep. The kakapo breeds but once in two years, and the mother bird carefully hides the nest from her mate, though why she does so is unknown, the male showing no desire to harm the eggs or young birds. In this infrequent breeding is demonstrated nature's thoughtfulness—having no destructive enemies the kakapo would multiply to too great numbers if the breeding season occurred as frequently as with other birds.

Proper Shade for the Eyes.

While better working conditions can be attained by properly shading and installing the lamp, much can be accomplished by shading the eye. But like lamp shades, eye shades may be good and bad. To the latter class belongs the curved, opaque shade with its edge made conspicuous in the field of view by a dark lining. Such a shade, acting as a distracting object, not only disturbs the adjustment of the eye, but by darkening the upper half of the field of view causes glare on working surfaces on which there is no glare and increases the glare on surfaces on which glare is already present, medical men assert.

Good Management.

"Our ward leader expects to corral all the feminine votes in the primary."

"How is he going to manage it?"

"He has caused it to get all around that all the polling places are to have mirrors in 'em."

Will Inaugurate New President

Meadville, Pa., 1920.—The inauguration ceremonies here Thursday for Dr. Fred W. Hixon, D. D., L. L. D. as president of Allegheny college at which Governor William C. Sproul is to deliver the principal address, will take place in the new gymnasium building and will serve also as the occasion for formally opening this new addition to the college's group of buildings. None of the student body rejoices in the opening of the new gym more than the basketball squad, which promptly next Friday morning will take possession of their new floor for practice work.

Last year in October the old gym was torn down to make way for this modern structure and during the season the basketballers had to practice in small, crowded quarters in the town, much to the disadvantage of the team. The new basketball floor is said to be the finest and most modern in the tri-state territory. This fact, coupled with the availability to Coach Applegran of a lot of good basketball material among the new students, especially those coming from high schools, has revived the hopes that Allegheny College will again this season be restored to its one-time position of supremacy in this sport. Captain Hofford, of the basketball team, is enthusiastic over the prospects for a winning season.
